For any woman who wants to have healthy pregnancies, it is important to understand the risk factors for miscarriage.] Factors contributing to miscarriage: Woman's age. A first miscarriage or recurrent miscarriage may be a sign of maternal ageing. Being pregnant with multiples. If a woman has been pregnant with twins or triplets, it is more likely that she will miscarry. For women who have been pregnant with twins, the chances of a miscarriage are ten times greater than with a singleton pregnancy. If a woman has been pregnant with triplets, her chances of miscarriage are four times greater than with a singleton pregnancy. This is largely because the three fetuses are in a single uterus, and can all miscarry at the same time. Being over 40. The risk of miscarriage increases in older women. The risk of miscarriage in women over 35 doubles after 35. Being underweight. Excess weight in early pregnancy. Being underweight (less than 100 kg) can be a risk factor for miscarriage
